Lukesland, Ivybridge and National Trust Saltram, Plymouth
Day trip by coach on Tuesday 3rd May 2022

Lukesland is a 24-acre garden situated within Dartmoor National Park and set in the beautiful valley of Addicombe Brook. It contains shrubs, wild flowers, rare trees and a pinetum with ponds, waterfalls and lakes. Extensive plantings of camellias, rhododendrons, azaleas and acers, plus a huge Davidia involucrata or handkerchief tree, provide much that is of interest.

Refreshments will be provided on arrival.

National Trust Saltram is a plantsman’s garden created by the 3rd Earl of Morley in the 18th century and incorporates rare, ancient and exotic trees; a mile-long lime avenue and a productive orangery. Here you will find a haven in which to explore quiet paths, secluded corners and heady scents.

Members may purchase their own refreshments from the café.
